Interest, motivation, challenge:

English strengths minds

Sophomores were introduced to high school English through a study of world literature. The problems of Silas Marner, the elements of a short story, and the epic journey of Ulysses soon became second nature to tenth-graders, and frequent theme topics for practice in writing.

Juniors studied American literature by meeting Huck Finn, Hester Prynne, and other immortal characters. Student evaluations of the theory of transcendentalism were topics for many a paper.

British fiction, drama, and poetry from Shakespeare to Shaw provided a base for Seniors, who did individual work and made analytical reports on the classic Macbeth, among others. Private journals were kept as a record of thoughts and moods.

Speech, drama yield talent

Miss Theisen and Mrs. Hutson combined forces this year to increase student appreciation of good speech and theater, and to provide students with an opportunity to perform in front of an audience in both speech and drama classes. Discussions, debates, and impromptus played an important role in Practical, Public, and Advanced Speech. Drama students perfected a variety of projects ranging from studying theatrical history and preparing a current events scrapbook to producing a one-act play, complete with makeup and costumes.

Foreign languages cover wide variety of learning

French. Spanish, and Latin students followed a varied program this year. Aside from studying grammar and construction in the ALM series and Julius Caesar's Gallic Wars, foreign language pupils performed plays and puppet shows and sang songs. Advanced classes translated El Camino and other novels. Dialogue was stressed and tape recorders were in constant use for oral work. Occasional films supplemented daily routine and introduced students to life in the countries whose language they were studying.

Teaching French and Spanish respectively, Miss Nelson and Mrs. Geraci were new to SJHS. Another first: Mr. Willging came up from the Jr. High to teach the solitary second-year Latin class.

Mr. Schnese uses the overhead projector to capture attention in American Problems class.

Social Studies expanded its boundaries, taking in American Studies. For Juniors only, this new course combined the study of American history and literature in a concentrated, two-hour block. Other changes included Mr. Bruno's taking over Psychology. He and Mr. Pegram joined Mr. Schnese in team teaching American Problems. Employing audio-visual aids and many other supplements to textbooks, SJ's team teaching program was one of the first in the state.

U.S. and World History and Geography provided students with a solid background for present-day world problems. Psychology skits and the field trip to Coldwater State Home augmented student understanding of the behavioral sciences. The one-semester class of Economics examined the world of banking and commerce. International Problems, another one-semester class, increased student awareness through knowledge of foreign nations.

Hypothesizing mutation rates of S. marcescens, chemically analyzing "unknowns," identifying types and names of countless rocks, demonstrating principles of physics to grade school children: Science students had a rigorous workout, in both the lab and the classroom.

Advanced Biology was a new course which involved extensive investigation into practical problems. In another new advanced class and without textbooks, Science Research students spent the entire year on three individual projects.

Mathematics creates problems,

progress, proficiency

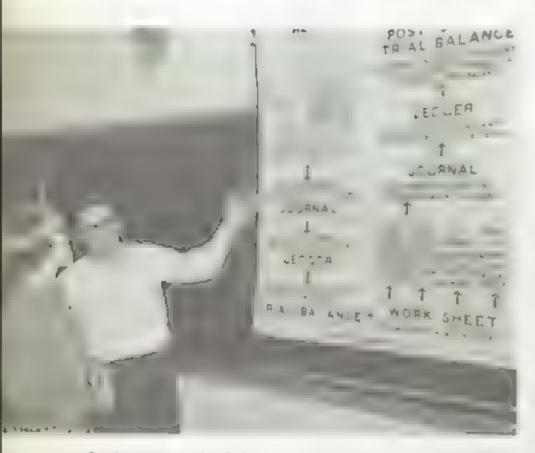

The world of quadratic equations, trig functions, Pythagorean theorems, slide rules, vectors, matrices, and polar coordinates was a complicated one, but it was a world in which eager math students thrived. Regular classroom procedure included frequent work with the overhead projector and at the board, and students learned many skills, including the difficult art of drawing perfect circles with chalk and a piece of string to illustrate proofs.

Business Education results in practical application of textbook learning

Wiring a board for a 402 accounting machine, balancing record books, taking dictation, typing time trials, and studying the qualities of a good secretary were daily assignments in the business department.

The object of Business Education was to teach students about the world of business and to train them for future careers. These goals were attained in several ways. Textbooks and mimeographed hand-outs were a source of instruction, but actual practice was the most effective teacher, and pupils soon learned to complete useful "jobs" with necessary speed and accuracy. Though not considered "academic" courses, business students often had homework and tests on both text material and use of machines.

Reading supplies expansion information, entertainment

New faces appeared in the library this year, with the addition of Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Hirsch. Hours were extended, too, and many students took advantage of the library's resources until six o'clock. Friday morning was always busy for the library, which afforded companionship and information.

A great portion of school work at SJ depended on reading ability, and Reading Development and Remedial Reading were designed to improve reading speed and comprehension. Films, vocabulary drills, and shadowscopes offered practice, and the select library made class enjoyable.

Home Ec educates for tomorrow

Informative guest speakers and field trips highlighted the year in the Home Ec department. Routine projects in Home Management included designing and furnishing an imaginary home. Clothing students produced many fine garments for themselves and others. Home and Family Living students learned what to expect from married life. The boys finally outnumbered the girls in the Foods classes, and SJHS turned out many excellent chefs, dishwashers, and towel folders.

Industrial Arts condition intellect; prepare future

Machine Shop, Drafting, Power Mechanics, Hot Metals, Wood Shop: Each one a step in SJ's Industrial Arts program to expose students to industry experiences. All increased student knowledge of methods used and proficiency in manipulating basic equipment of many different occupations.

Overhead projectors and transparencies assisted teachers in basic classroom instruction, but the major portion of each class period was spent in the lab, striving for practical application of knowledge. Advanced projects, such as the construction of a garage, were required of the more specialized classes. Shop boys worked to compete in the Michigan Industrial Education Awards Contest in the spring. As always, safety was stressed, and the outstanding Senior boy won the Honor Award.

Art classes stimulate creative

efforts in aspiring students

Art class this year was a time to unwind, set aside the problems of the day, and become engrossed in expression through the many media of the art world. First and second year students concentrated mainly on drawing, painting, and sculpture, while third year artists branched off from this base to develop their own interests and abilities.

All classes learned art appreciation, becoming familiar with artists and styles of yesterday and today. Frequent art shows in both the school and downtown libraries sparked incentive, and St. Joseph walked off with many ribbons. Designings posters and play programs also provided artists with an opportunity to display their talent.

Physical Education builds bodies, skills; encourages positive thinking

Physical Education was established to develop general body conditioning through rhythm, balance, and coordination. Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Salvadore, and Mr. Haack presented a varied program of sports and physical fitness exercises. Pool, trampoline, and weight-lifting equipment expanded the program, and Senior boys became adept at advanced gymnastics. Co-ed sports offered girls a chance to prove they were not necessarily the weaker sex. Senior monitors assisted the faculty in directing preliminary warmups and acting as referees in frequent games.

Health and Safety was offered in the Phys Ed department. This one-semester course taught elements of first aid and allowed Sophomores to finish classroom half of Driver's Ed.

Chorus, Choir, Orchestra guide ability to excellence

To enhance appreciation of all types of music—through listening and performing, solo-and-ensemble, classical, semi-classical, and popular, was the expressed purpose of Orchestra. Performances at Solo and Ensemble Festival, District and State Festivals, and concerts for students and service clubs brought recognition. The year's work culminated in a lively Pit Orchestra for the musical Oklahoma!

Under the direction of Mr. Bowen, Chorus and Choir members studied and sang in a wide range of styles. Long rehearsals added polish to performances, including assemblies and scholarship concerts.

Theory was open to Juniors and Seniors interested in delving into music from a theoretical point of view. Aside from analyzing existing music. Theory students displayed flair for original composition.

Marching, Pep, Stage Bands foster

Active student participation and hard work were combined in this year's Band, and the results were terrific. Band won First Division ratings at the District Band and Marching Band Festivals, and a second at the State Band Festival—a well-earned award! Band was appreciated locally, too, as they received standing ovations at the Christmas Concert at the Kiwanis Club and at the annual 7:60 Show.

Containing eighty-six members, Band was the largest and certainly one of the busiest organizations in the school. Out of Symphony Band, came Marching, Pep. and Stage Bands, and wind players for Orchestra.

Winding up half-time performance, Marching Band exits from the field leaving the fans in cheerful exuberance, ready to take over the gridiron in tunnel formation.

Marching Band performed at every home football game, and travelled to Niles. Their "American" half-time show with hat-lights was rewarded with a standing ovation. Practice began at summer camp, ran through football season, and resumed in the Spring for the Blossom Parade.

Pep Band, directed entirely by students, provided spirited music such as the "Fite Song" and "As the Bears Go Marching In," for every game.

Organized mainly for the Variety Show, Stage Band offered background music for other acts and entered the spotlight to perform jazz numbers on their own.

Vibrant Pep Club sparks school spirit, encourages team to athletic prowess

"We want a victory, a St. Joe victory!"
This and other spirited cries echoed in the Glass House at every home basketball game, as the devoted girls in Pep Club assisted the cheerleaders in stirring student support. A special treat for both the Pep Club and the basketball squad was a bus trip to the Niles game in February. The girls also joined the "spirit block" at the March tournament.

In order to perfect their performance and formation, Pep Club practiced diligently in the cafeteria every Thursday after school. The cheerleaders often came down to show the girls the latest cheers and teach skills of voice projection.

Miss Willet was new club advisor this year and helped the girls learn their complicated hand motions. There was another change in staff. Capt. Jan Lannert moved out-of-town after the first semester. Secretary-Treasurer Marilee Smith replaced her for the remainder of the season.

Varsity Club strove this year to bring outstanding sports personalities to SJHS, and Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr highlighted the year when he spoke to interested students in March. Another thrill was viewing a professional baseball game in Chicago.

Members formed the "SJ" in the "spirit block" at the tournament game in Niles, and continued with traditional activities such as running the coat check and concession stands at home basketball games.

Varsity Club was created to promote St. Joe's athletic program and to encourage dedication, pride, and good sportsmanship in athletics. Monthly meetings were held on Monday evenings, and spirited initiations for new members took place in both fall and spring.

Campus Life upholds integrity, ethics, religion

Campus Life increased its activities this year, sponsoring an area-wide party with other Campus Life Clubs. The highlight of the year was Gene McFadden, who gave an impressive talk on narcotics, following a film entitled "Instant Insanity." Another achievement was having Rev. James Walker speak on "Second Mile Christianity." Campus Life members also studied how religion fits in with family life.

Religious in nature, Campus Life sought to promote morality in the school. Activities at the meetings, held every other Friday afternoon in Mr. Brittan's room, were games, speakers, films, and discussions.

Hi-Y imparts eminence, character, leadership to SJ

Hi-Y boys made a name for SJHS this year, capturing the three top offices in the annual State Youth Legislature held at Lansing in December. Hi-Y also participated in mock U.N. sessions at Hillsdale and St. Joseph Catholic.

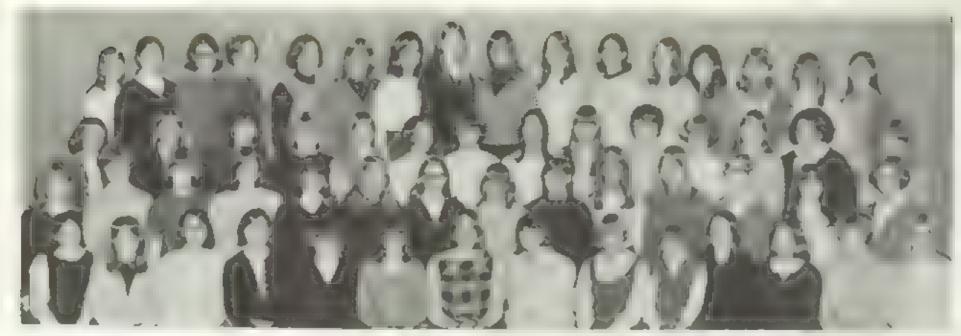

Created to maintain the principles of Christianity, Hi-Y is associated with the YMCA. Hi-Y activities included selling advertisement to local merchants for football programs and then selling the programs at Dickinson Stadium.

Elected Lieutenant Governor, Governor, Speaker of the House, respectively, S. Owen, T. Benner, P. Maki pause outside Youth Legislature building during state meeting.

At one of their scheduled meetings, several Hi-Y members discuss parliamentary procedure in preparation for upcoming mock United Nations.

School took on a new meaning for Sophomore girls who visited Gard School and its pupils. To pad their treasury, they sponsored a bake sale at Ollie's. An overnight slumber party at the Y was planned just for fun. To celebrate end of school and installation of officers, Sophs had dinner at Schuler's.

Busy Juniors sold pounds of chocolate, held a hayride, and decorated for Heartbeat. Joint meetings with the Seniors included a style show, during which Seniors modeled new fashions, and the Junior-Senior Banquet, Planned entirely by Juniors, it was an installation party for new officers and a farewell o Seniors.

Seniors spent much time on service, buying toothbrushes for exceptional children and donating to Cancer and other funds. A lecture on pool and a complete tour of Dey Bros, were part of a wide range of activities at bi-weekly meetings. Because of lack of funds, the Senior trip was limited to a dinner at Tosi's.

Future Careers furnish experience in working world

Medical Careers Club heard guest speakers ranging from a physical therapist to a surgical nurse. Informative field trips were made to the Upjohn Kalamazoo plant and South Bend Mem. Hospital School of Nursing. Memorial Hospital "pinkies" were recognized for their service in May.

F. T. A. continued it's successful program of

"cadet teaching" to help members gain first-hand experience in the profession. Another aid was taking a teachers' aptitude test and evaluating the results.

Future Secretaries meetings were all field trips this year. Members visited the Court House, Sears, Bendix, to observe secretarial work in government and business.

Ability establishes Thespians in SHJS productions

Thespian Troupe 584 shone this year, and its members participated in every production of the Fine Arts Department, onstage and behind the scenes. Broken records at the Senior Class Play and One-Act Plays proved the group's talent.

"As the School Turns," a hilarious view of some typical school happenings, brought down the house, and the Thespians hoped it would start a tradition as a Variety Show act. Thespians earned an added honor this year: St. Joseph sponsored a Fine Arts Youth Festival in May, and for the one-act play event "Hitchhiker" was one of four plays performed in a statewide field.

Thespian points came easy this year for the active Troupers. "Folly on the Trolly" was a delightful part of "Showtime '68", and many Troupers were also involved in Our Town and Oklahoma! productions in the spring.

Points were earned backstage as well as onstage, and Troupers became expert painters, skilled make-up artists, and successful ticket sellers. There was never a dull moment at monthly meetings, as the Troupers constantly performed charades and improvisations.

Stage Crew meets exacting tasks with professional skills

The job of a stage technician is always demanding, and this year was no exception. Eight dedicated boys scheduled lighting and sound for every production in the auditorium. Stage Crew were paid for hours spent on non-school productions, but they volunteered their services to add polish to school shows. All meetings were work sessions, and they increased as each show approached. Mr. Bruno replaced Mr. Nelli as advisor.

Mechanics Club to successful first year

Power Mechanics' major contribution as a club was sponsoring the student assembly by Fred Agabashian, a former "Indy 500" contestant, on driving safety. His spirited lecture was supplemented with a colorful film.

Activities at meetings were many. Members visited the Grand Rapids Auto Show and area drag strips. Other activities were films of the Indianapolis and Daytona "500" races.

A new club, Power Mech. was established to promote knowledge of automobiles and to plan for future automotive competitions with police supervision. Advised by Mr. Harju, it was a worthwhile addition to St. Joe's organizations.

1968 "Mazenblue" reflects obscure events into special unforgettable moments

"The yearbook is YOUR book . . . buy your copy today! Slogans such as this assisted the energetic Mazenbiue staff in their enormous task of reflecting the year in book form and promoting it to SJ's students and faculty. The new position of Assistant Editor was added this year, and, for the first time, sophomores were eligible to work on the staff. Other changes in this year's book included a different printer, professional photographer, and colored, textured paper.

Work on the '68 Mazenblue actually began last July when the editors attended a two-week educational institute at Michigan State University, and the job did not end until June, with the coverage of graduation. In striving to uphold the tradition of producing a top award-winning book, the "Pub" was in constant use, both before and after school. "X" marked the spot on the deadline chart, and as each of the numerous deadlines approached, the pace grew faster and the hours longer, reaching a peak at 11:30 on a Friday night and an all-day work-out on Saturday.

Putting out the annual was demanding and exacting work, but the August Pen-Point Party made it all worthwhile for everyone.

"Read all about it—Wind-Up changes advisor, adopts new staff policy!" Under the direction of Miss Nelson, the Wind-Up staff elected to have only one staff for the entire year. The paper was published bi-weekly and the staff met after each issue came out to discuss problems and plans for future editions. Nan Sanders' column answered many questions and frequent editorials expressed student opinions. Though school equipment was used, all writing, planning and typing was done out of class.

SLAAM fulfills library duties efficiently inside, out

Twenty SLAAM members assisted the librarians in countless ways. They had complete charge of the circulation and reshelving of books and the checking in and out and filing of the library's numerous periodicals. The decorative and informative bulletin boards in front of the library were also a result of SLAAM workers' efforts and attention.

Highlighting the year was a student art show. Six awards were given out of seventy painting and sculpture entries, entitling winners to receive five to seven dollars worth of free paperbacks from the library. Money was earned by paperback sales.

Group effort strengthens math interest, knowledge

Short biographies and quotes of famous mathematicians complemented the solving of puzzles and problems in the format of Math Club meetings. Advisor Mr. Schultz often contributed problems of his own and awarded mathematical booklets to members who could solve them. Issues of "The Mathmatics Student Journal" were handed out at meetings, which were held the third Monday evening of every month. These publications contained games, puzzles, and problems, many of which were submitted by students across the nation.

One meeting was held at BHHS, where a former Benton Harbor math teacher spoke to members of both schools. An honorary organization, Mu Alpha Theta, accepted Juniors for the first time this year, and eligible members were inducted formally in May.

Pride sustains team in mud, snow, disappointment

The '67 football season was one of mixed emotions. Defeats predominated as the Bears ended the season with a 2-7 record, which Head Coach Koontz attributed to "a combination of inexperience and bad weather." Four home games were played in rain or snow. Only seven lettermen returned from last year.

However, SJ was proud, too. Despite the win-loss record, the Bears played a better passing game than ever this year. Six Gridders won honorable mention to the all-conference squad, while Steve Machacek, John Richter, and Bob VanAntwerp were chosen to the first squad. Machacek made the All-Southwestern Michigan team, an honor squad from all classes.

Versatility, skill, improvement highlight Junior Varsity squad

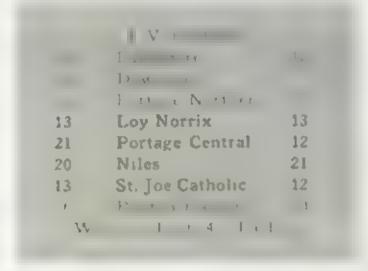

Injuries proved harmful to the junior Bears, handing them a 3-4-1 record for the season, but both the players and the coach gained valuable experience. Assisted by Mr. Roger Burns, junior high teacher Mr. Clare Adkın made his debut as head coach. The junior gridders improved their tackling, and gained an impressive one-third of their yardage in passing.

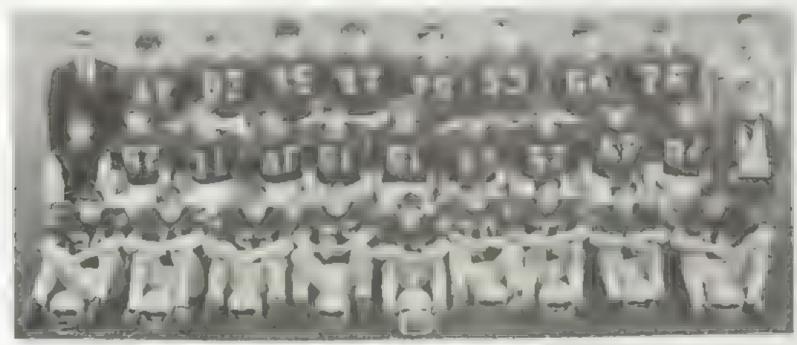

Because the JV's had no conference, the squad honored its outstanding players. This year, Mark Mawhinney and Jim Ticknor tied for Most Valuable Back, Bill Prussing was Most Valuable Lineman, and Bob DeVries took the top honor of Most Valuable Player.

"This year only four teams between here and Lansing beat our record, but next year we'll be tops!" Coach Ronald Waldvogel had nothing but praise for the '67 Harriers who became the best Cross Country team St. Joe has ever had. The boys not only took two seconds in the Sturgis and Albion Invitationals but fourth in regionals.

Greg Parrett, Senior captain of the squad, won an undeniable reputation for SJHS this year, again taking the top honor in the Big Six, and third place in the state finals. He broke records on seven courses and was elected to the All-State team two firsts for St. Joe!

Coach Waldvogel attributed his team's success to dedication, desire, and hard work. The boys began practice last June and ran a grand total of 15,000 miles for the season, each running fifteen miles a day. Ted Shierk had the best mileage for the year, running a fantastic 1300 miles, then succumbing to an unrelated knee injury, which sidelined him for the remainder of the season.

Undefeated by any regional swim team, the '68 Tankers brought continued fame and glory to SJHS. Mr. Powell's boys were Southwestern Michigan Invitational Champs for the second, and Southwestern Michigan Relay Champs for the fourth straight year. The Tankers went on to become runners-up in the State Class A Finals, losing to Grosse Point by only three points! Nine of eleven school records were set in the process.

Five boys won All-State recognition: Fred Jenkins was named to the first team; Dick Ball, Rick Freridge, Rick Handy, Frank Smith were elected to the second Named "Michigan High School Swim Coach of the Year," Mr. Powell designated Dick Ball, Fred Jenkins as most valuable members of the 1968 SJ team.

Disappointment cages Bears as fustrating season

Dave Knuth, muscles tense, sets himself up for a shot, hoping to raise score.

Disappointment ran high among Bear fans who had hoped for a more successful season. The win-loss record (4-12) was not too promising, but when the Cagers won, they won in style. Defeating Loy Norrix was easiest, but beating Portage Central was most exciting. Defeating Niles and Lakeshore restored pride, and with the aid of the student body and a stuffed teddy bear, the Cagers rallied in the tournament game, only to be beaten by one point!

In his first year at SJHS, Coach Burns blamed "inexperience and lack of speed" for team losses. However, individual members, Dick Lindenfeld and Mark Witkowski, were named to first and second All-Conference.

An opening in defense allows "Van" to score easy two points.

Junior Varsity gains experience for future

Despite many setbacks, the JV Cagers were a spirited group. Two defeats over the Dowagiac Chieftains were both triumphs and morale boosters. The win-loss record (2-14) was a letdown, but Mr. Puma, in his second year of coaching, felt his boys had "a lot of determination, a never-give-up attitude" which would pay off in the future. The squad put in many long hours of practice to improve their shooting ability and rebounding strength

"We're from St. Joe, couldn't be prouder! If you can't hear us, we'll yell a little louder!" The Cheerleaders began their cry in September and it increased in volume until March, when they had the whole student body for support. Tournament time was the climax of the season for Cheerleaders, who filled three buses and over thirty cars for a huge "Maize & Blue" caravan to Niles.

JV Cheerleaders had a long season.
They had their "initiation" to high school cheering in the rain, they learned to make sacrifices, they saw many defeats—but if they "survived" their first year, they were eager to try out again.

Cindermen learn lanes for coming meets; victories

Hard work reaped benefits for the Cindermen as they finished second in the Big Six, fourth in the John Adams Quadrangle, third at Albion, eighth at Hastings, and tenth in Kalamazoo Invitational.

Individual conference awards were abundant, too. Bill Hamilton won the high hurdles event, Wayne Madison, low hurdles, and Al Littler, 100 and 200 yard dashes. The 880 relay team also picked up a first. With all champions returning next year, hopes were high for the future.

Coach Waldvogel said that a "lack of twenty-foot long jumpers and depth in the middle distance events" hindered the squad, but depth in the long distance events and outstanding relay teams, hurdlers, and sprinters made up for the defecit.

Coach Waldvogel was assisted this year by student teacher Duane Pletcher.

Green golfers' practice means future success

Playing their last year under Coach Zick, the golf team turned in some excellent scores, losing the Big Six championship to Niles by only three strokes! Junior Bill Prussing was a Medalist in the conference, while Senior Greg Jaeger won the Bert Riel Memorial Trophy, an award given to the outstanding Senior sportsman in golfing.

A skillful group of Underclassmen strengthened the team and helped combat inconsistent playing, one of the few weaknesses of the team.

Mr. Zick, who, retiring after twentythree years of coaching at St. Joe, predicted a strong team for the next few years. Using the skill which won him the Bert Reil Memorial Award, Captain Greg Jaegar drives the ball far down the fairway.

Vigor sparks Homecoming;

crowd cheerful despite loss

This year's Homecoming was an experience in spirit for SJHS. Though clouds threatened, Thursday night was cool and crisp, perfect for the mood of the festivities. While a Dowagiac Chieftain blazed in effigy on the practice field, Tom Benner delivered his battle cry amid student shouts. A fast trot to the bandshell, and then Ken Carr and Coach Koontz gave their promises of victory.

But it was not to be. Priday night brought rain, biting cold, and a 26-0 defeat. But Bear spirit was not dampened at the half-time ceremonies when Co-Captains Dick Lindenfeld and Steve Machacek crowned a thrilled Vicki Ovik as queen.

Saturday, the decorations committee, under Co-Chairmen Loni Smith and Julie Freel, worked to transform the cafeteria into a ballroom complete with a throne. "Colors Turn to Maize and Blue" was indeed fit for a queen, and it was a memorable finale for Homecoming '67.

Class serves progressive "dinner" to full house

"The Man Who Came to Dinner" came to SJ in a surprising burst of Senior class spirit, breaking all records for ticket sales, and delighting all who attended. Stolen from the athletic world and personally coached by John Liskey, Kenny "The Man" Carr became an overnight sensation in his hilarious portrayal of the terrifying but lovable Sheridan Whiteside.

Famous critic and lecturer, Mr. Whiteside, slipped on the steps of the Ernest Stanley family of Masalia, Ohio, while on a tour, and became the unwilling and tyrannical guest of the overwhelmed family, altering the lives of all with whom he came in contact. The Class of '68 gave an unforgettable production which will be remembered for many years to come.

7:60 Show exemplifies Symphony Band's distinction

The 1968 "7:60 Show" earned its standing ovation by presenting a delightful mixture of music, both old and new. Complete with colorful, pulsating lights, the program included a lazy "Moon River", a drum and fife in the "American Civil War Fantasy", the spirited sound of the Tijuana Brass, the long-hair "Prelude and Fugue in G Minor", and a rousing Sousa march. The Dixie group featured girls for the first time, and their sparkling "Dixieland Jamboree" was the hit of the show. An enthusiastic crowd piled on the "7:60 Bandwagon" to enjoy the Symphony Band's annual concert and excellent musicianship.

Thespians exhibit striking excellence in "one-acts"

The Thespians, always eager for a challenge, tackled three difficult one-act plays to present to a sell-out crowd on February 3.

The farcical "Night In Derby" was the story of a testy man and his garrulous wife and the hilarious situation they created when trying to locate a dinner party in a strange town.

On the surface just a story of a starving artist, "Cup of Tea" related the selfishness and hypocrisy often so prevalent in society.

A psychological drama about death, "Hitchhiker", with its eerie lighting and sound effects, was a suspenseful climax to an eventful evening of theatrical variety.

In an effort to avoid a solo encounter with the super-natural stranger trailing him cross-country, Ronald Adams (R. Cain) restrains a female hitch-hiker (K. Paul). Others in cast: P. Appel, C. Bartz, T. Benner, K. Piner, P. Ruspino, G. Walters, T. Watson played minor roles.

During a charitable moment, Mr. Fell (R. Koshar) entrusts his wife Rosemary (T. Mitchell) with one hundred dollars for the struggling artist with an air of mystery who appeared at the doorstep. Others in cast: C. Crow, N. David, L. Rhodes, M. Willey.

Painstakingly trying to locate an elusive address in Derby, K. Carr loses "face" before his unamused wife (J. Lindenfeld). Others in cast: T. Benner, N. David, B. Dumdie, J. Liskey, K. Marshall, R. Parker, C. Raycraft, M. Smith, T. Watson.

Lively beat, radiant hearts warm blustery February night

When enthused couples entered the Y's Lakeview Room on blustery February 10, they were delighted to see hearts, hearts, and more hearts! Each one hanging from the ceiling had two names on it, and sometime during the evening, every couple claimed their special heart. "Mod" was the theme set by the quick-tempoed grand march and the "psychedelic" music by the "Finer Things."

Framed by a huge red and white heart, Queen Joyce Ammeson was all aglow when presented with the traditional tiara and roses. Junior girls provided decorations and Freshmen served punch and cookies. Sponsored by the Twin City Y-Teens, Heartbeat was memorable tribute to Valentine's Day.

As "Showtime '68" explodes with

"Showtime '68" opened with a bang, and talent explosions supplied appreciative audiences with a well-rounded evening of entertainment. All-out cooperation became the key to success and the nineteenth annual Variety Show was another sell-out performance.

Music was well represented in this year's show. Vocals ranged from "Sound of Music" to "People" to "Razz-ma-Tazz," and instrumentals were classical in Rachmaninoff's "Elegy" and jazz in "Mr. Anthony's Boogie." Student talent provided a Charleston, jazz-ballet, Sioux Ceremonial War Dance, and the traditional Senior Boys' Chorus Line. "Chatty Kathy with a Kiss" and "Show Business" were proof of originality, and "A Square" added a touch of patriotism.

The Showtime Company, including the Showtime Dancers, Stage Band, and Choral Ensemble, was a hard-working and nearly professional "backbone." Rudy Koshar, calm and collected as Master of Ceremonies, doubled as a dancer and one of the Senior Boys.

Choral Ensemble transforms St. Joseph High School's auditorium into a New York Broadway stage with a medley of "Hello, Dolly" tunes.

Daily life, marriage,

The tragic love story of a young couple in a small New Hampshire town, "Our Town" was a touching drama. The time was set for the early 1900's, but save for stepladders, tables, and trellises, there was no scenery. Because of the serious tone of the final act, the traditional curtain call was omitted.

"You're doin' fine, Oklahoma! Oklahoma, O.K.!" summed up viewers' response to this year's musical. Under the excellent direction of Mr. Bowen, John Liskey, and Kay Youngblood, "Oklahoma!" was an unparalleled success. Friday night was a complete sellout and the spirited cast was rewarded for their effort Saturday by a standing ovation—another record.

A musical comedy set in Indian territory, "Oklahoma!" was the rousing love story of a stubborn cowboy and proud farm girl. Ken Marshall, in his first singing role, was thoroughly delightful as the "curly-headed cowpoke," while Marilee Smith, Nancy Bennett, Nick Auringer, Tina Mitchell, and Tom Benner once again displayed their singing and acting prowess.

"Ugliness" in, neatness out--Twirp Week rules

Because of the millage campaign, Twirp Week was restricted in length this year. Friday brought Sweatshirt Day and a great variety of clothes not usually permitted in school were allowed.

Friday night was the Senior-Faculty basketball game. The Faculty had an enthusiastic cheering squad, but Varsity cheerleaders "spirited" the Senior boys to an overwhelming, 60-36 victory. Heliumfilled "basketballs" added a colorful touch to the excitement.

Gordon Schreiber was crowned Ugly Man at the dance, which had a new twist —admission measured by boy's waistline.

Varsity Club races by Seniors during mishap

Misfortune plagued the participants of this year's "Little 500."

The Class of '69, having entrants but no bike to ride, was disqualified from the beginning and had to be content to cheer on their favorites from the sidelines.

The Class of '68 was eager to extend their winning streak to two years, but Senior Dave Knuth "bit the dust." Not only was he battered and bruised, but the bike "totaled," and Srs. were disqualified.

Up from behind, however, came Varsity Club. Experienced "pedalmen" all, they proceeded to win St. Joe's Indianapolis race with an excellent time of thirty-one minutes, forty-seven seconds.

Sunny skies for graduation: clear futures for '68 Class

For the graduating Class of '68, activities after Memorial Day were their last together, and the Seniors made the most of them. Late-night visits to the flag pole; breakfasts, practices, pool parties, and dances all played a part in a busy graduation week.

June 2 was a stifling day, but the heat did not prevent Seniors from donning caps and gowns to participate in the annual Baccalaureate service.

By June 5 the air had cooled somewhat, and sunny skies and a faint breeze put the crowning touch on a perfect day. Senior speeches, "The Unfinished Book" by Tina Mitchell and "The Happening" by Rudy Koshar were touching impressions of life at St. Joe High.

Cindy reaches to adjust Gordie's cap before the ceremonies.

Surprised at receiving roses from parents, Linda shares joy.

Officers, Exec Bd. lead Seniors through final year

The choosing of a class gift puzzles officers every year: Mike, Carla, John, Marcia debate with advisor, Mrs. Schurr.

"Rah, rah, rah, rah, rah... Seniors!" Raising the roof at pep assemblies, lunching at Roxy's, working on school service or co-op, writing weekly news summaries for American problems: all a part of being a Senior at SJHS.

The Class of '68 found their Senior year to be a year of privilege and responsibility, achievement and challenge. Frenzy at tournament time accompanied researching a paper on Macbeth or Communism. Working on the Senior Play went hand in hand with accepting the consequences for unfinished homework. Choice seats in the auditorium required close attention and good behavior. Acceptance at that "special" school meant "cracking the books" to keep up the grades. Graduation made it all worthwhile.

Sadness lingers as SJHS

awards its top sportsmen

Sixteen years ago, a Junior named John Karsten suffered a brain tumor and died. His parents wished him to be remembered so they set up the John Karsten Award, honoring a Senior boy who displayed leadership, scholarship, sportsmanship, and athletic achievement. Bob VanAntwerp, this year's recipient, displayed these traits both during school and after hours.

Last May, another Junior, Kip Reed, was struck down by a brain injury resulting from an automobile accident. His parents, too, wanted him to be remembered, so they established the Kip Reed Memorial. This award honored a Senior boy who upheld the high standards followed by Kip with a three hundred dollar scholarship to the school of his choice. Greg Parrett, first boy chosen for this award, received his plaque from Kip's father, Mr. Lonzo Reed.

Leaders prove worthy via magazine sale, prom

The Class of '69, no longer "green" Sophomores, felt that their Junior year entailed "more activities, more privileges, and more homework." Autumn brought magazine sales, the traditional money-making project. Led by Carolyn Dey and Joel Raak, the Juniors turned out en masse to exceed their goal by $1000. Winter arrived and busy chairmen began planning the Junior-Senior Prom. But not all time was spent on extracurricular activities. The Class of '69 became familiar with America's glorious past in U. S. history; great national authors in American literature; popular American sports in excursions to the "Campus Q" and Gersonde's.

Politics, pictures--progressive Sophs impress SJ

"Where's the bookstore? . . . Lunch at 10:30?' Mr. Wingking?!" When the Class of '70 entered the "glass house" for the first time last September, they were apprehensive and confused, but not for long. The Sophomores soon became accustomed to longer classes, flashing lights, and floating hours.

A wide variety of activities, both during school and after hours, provided the members of the Class of '70 with greater freedom in selecting a course of study or pursuing other interests. Sophs enrolled in classes such as English, B.S.C.S., and plane geometry.

By June, they had become lasting friends with Silas Marner and Julius Caesar, joined various clubs, challenged the Seniors at pep assemblies, and participated in endless activities—all a part of life at SJHS.

Administration — superior management at SJ

Mr. Webb and Mr. Schuster combined efforts this year to run SJHS more efficiently. Mr. Webb spent much of his time examining and evaluating the curriculum, visiting classrooms to instruct on such topics as school policy and millage votes, and holding more conferences with the faculty. Mr. Schuster was in charge of all student activities, organizations, and discipline; and responsible for public relations and running the school in Mr. Webb's absence.

As Superintendent, Mr. Ziehmer's three main duties were hiring teachers and administrators, securing the necessary funds to run the schools, and advising the School Board of the system's needs. He spent hours interviewing prospective faculty members and negotiating salaries with all teachers. Much time and effort was expended working to pass the fifteen mill operating tax. Aiding Mr. Ziehmer, Administrative Assistant Robert Wallen acted as head of Adult Education, ran the federal grant program, and managed the "School Notes" publication, taking most of the picures himself!

Business Manager Roger Petrie supervised custodians and maintenance, bus drivers and transportation, hot lunch, elections, and all finances. He gave speeches, settled complaints, and this year tackled the responsibility of district truant officer.

Counselors advise students, guide promising futures

For the first time, SJ counselors Mr Ropele, Mrs. Schuur, Mr. Blunt, and Mr. Davis did not teach any classes, enabling them to spend all their time on the tremendous responsibility of advising almost a thousand students. This year the counselors established a new program which stressed helping the "underachiever" produce up to capacity, and helping every student match interests and abilities in choosing a suitable vocation. This program called for more work with parents and many after-hours conferences.

Other duties of SJ's counselors included administering scholarship tests, Iowas, and college boards; filling out endless recommendations for college and job applications; keeping in contact with graduates; and scheduling classes—a job that required untold hours of patient planning.

ABOVE: Preparing future assignments are Miss McConnell, Miss Cheyne. LOWER LEFT: Discussing methods of teaching are Miss Covert, Mr. Collison, Miss Harrold, Miss Pike, Miss Graufsma.

Mrs. Joyce Shuur, Mr. Adrian Davis, Mr. Donald Blunt, and head-counselor Mr. Joseph Ropele use "post office" for complicated business of scheduling.

Green student teachers blossom in glass house, gaining field experience

SJHS was fortunate in having many fine student teachers this year. Seniors from either Michigan State or Western Michigan Universities, they were well equipped to cope with today's challenging classes. During their first few days at SJ, the practice teachers observed their assigned instructors to receive first-hand knowledge of proper teaching methods. Then they began correcting papers and tests and writing out seating charts. Finally, after much preparation, they taught their first classes. In addition to participating in regular SJ faculty activities, the student teachers held a three-hour seminar each week to discuss problems and techniques.

Mrs. Bingham and her colleagues wish Mrs Goss well as she leaves her library post in mid-year

Educators' wit, wisdom create students' laughter, learning

Teachers at SJHS had many and varied activities this year. In addition to teaching each day, faculty members tackled the extra responsibility of instructing prospective teachers on proper classroom procedure. The faculty attended PTA and SJEA meetings regularly and still found time to advise all of SJ's numerous organizations. Chaperoning dances and clubs maintained teacherstudent relationships outside the classroom.

Moments in the dining room or their lounge, plus weekly bowling and occasional get-togethers, gave teachers an opportunity to get acquainted with each other. Here they exchanged opinions about teaching, the coffee, and the latest sports scores before returning to work.

Maintenance crew, special education staff combine to give efficiency, safety

Mr Stanley shows versatility needed in custodian iob

Services of many personnel were required to maintain SJHS as a healthy house of learning. The competent bus drivers tackled all kinds of weather to transport students; the kitchen staff, under the direction of Mrs. Virginia Herrman, strove to improve the tastiness of hot lunch; the custodians kept the building in tip-top condition; Auditorium Director Greg Nelli supervised the technical end of stage productions. School nurse Mrs. Richards watched student health, while Mr. Watson gave hearing tests. Mr. Heckathorne assisted co-op students.

Students are examined by Mr. Watson for auditory defects

Hardworking St Joe bus drivers include the following SITTING Cafford Dana, Otis Collins, Donald Potts.

Forrest Borg STANDING Ruth Hill, Karen Christopher, Betty Daily, Howard Stansell, Francis Ott

Busy, friendly kitchen: Elsie Glossinger, Helen Brant, Mildred Angerson, Barb Barsuhn, Ann Techert, Lucille Tapp

Mrs. Richards emphasizes the educational aspect of health

Earnest co-op students get job advice from Mr. Heckathorne

Mr Ott rises to meet minor emergency-broken light

Mr. Nelli focuses lights on one of fine arts productions

Just think-another September to June span aiming toward the ultimate goal of graduation is over. Yet, is it? The warm relationships formed with both friends and teachers, the knowledge found both inside and outside the classroom, and the many wide-ranged experiences gained in one short year can live forever. Vivid memories kaleidoscope in your mind. As you look back, the thunderous applause, the heart-breaking defeat, the "straight A" report card, the tears of joy and sadness jumble together with the rehearsal when you missed your cue, the many hours you spent going over the same exercise at practice, the time you stayed up all night typing a term paper or studying for exams. Remember? In many ways, those events seem like they just couldn't have happened that long ago, and yet at other times they appear to have been forgotten.

As editor of the 1968 Mazenblue. I feel I have seen a major part of your year worth sharing with every one. I can't thank Mrs. Truesdell and every individual member of the staff enough for helping make this book, your book, reflect all the vibrant, lively activities along with the quiet, subdued moments that have taken place this year. We, the Mazenblue staff, have tried to record these events so that you can remember them always. We can't express your distinct personal feelings, but we can reflect some of the smotions involved. Yes, September 1967 and June 1968 are over, but I hope many of the experiences of that year are never forgotten, because you can relive them in the 1968 Mazenblue
